

Chapter 104

William sat down with a calm look on his face.

The two men stared at each other, swore at William and Felicity then ran away.

Seeing that, everyone on the scene all laughed out loud.

With Elizabeth's presence, William and Felicity would only suffer.

The crowd had already judged them and kept their distance.

William and Felicity were certainly courting death!

They should know of their status. They shouldn't even be there.

Elizabeth sneered when she saw them shift away.

Such a useless man William was!

And Felicity too!

"It's very lucky of you to spot me here tonight. You might only be able to see me on TV after today!"

Elizabeth thought.

As she was thinking about it, her cell phone suddenly rang.

She was delighted and immediately picked up the phone. She said seductively, "Hi, Director Zhang."

Then, she went out to answer the phone.

"Okay, okay, I will go to you right away, Director Zhang! Thank you for that good news! Let me serve you well tonight! Your satisfaction is guaranteed!" Elizabeth said excitedly when she heard that she would soon receive a supporting role in a film.

This would mark her debut as an actress.

Finally, her days of waiting had come to an end.

After hanging up the phone, she flashed a smile and, "Sorry, I have to go first. I need to go to a shoot."

When the crowd heard this, they began to applaud spontaneously.

People were congratulating Elizabeth on her new role.

"Congratulations, Elizabeth! You will be a famous star in no time! Don't forget us then."

"I never thought there would be a second famous star among us graduates. That's really amazing!"

"Elizabeth, keep going! I have faith in you. Don't forget to give us your autograph in the future!"

Amidst of all the admiration, Elizabeth stood up proudly.

When she walked past the door, she frowned and said coldly, "Why are you blocking the way? Do you need to stretch your leg so much? Are you trying to trip me?"

William sneered but drew back his legs. He wasn't even blocking her path.

William didn't even bother to look at the arrogant Elizabeth.

After she left, the scene became lively again.

All the beautiful compliments were replaced with complaints.

"D*mn it! Did she really think she would be a star? She was so conceited, I hate her."

"What else can we do? She's in good hands, she was signed under Mr. Harper Wang's company, so she's doing really well!"

"Humph! She was already conceited before getting famous. Look how easy it was to get along with Flavia, even though she's super famous now. In front of Flavia, Elizabeth is nothing at all!"

"By the way, why is Flavia not here yet? Is she not going to come?"

"It's impossible! Someone said her car was arriving just now. I'm so excited to finally meet the famous star!"

It was clear that everyone respected and admired Flavia. Felicity's heart skipped a beat when she noticed the commotion.

She only came because she wanted to meet Flavia in person again.

Finally, the time had come.

"William, I'm so excited!" Felicity poked William, her face blushing.

William looked at this crazy fangirl and smiled, "You will be even more excited later."

"Forget it, you won't understand!" Felicity rolled her eyes at William and then kept her keen eyes on the door.

After a while, someone suddenly exclaimed, "I've received news that Flavia is here! She's coming in!"

In a blink of an eye, everyone left their seats and rushed to the entrance of the event hall.

In an instant, the entrance was overpacked.

Felicity also wanted to join them but when she saw the scene, she couldn't help but smile bitterly, "It seems like there are many people who are crazier than me."

"She's here! She's here! I can see her!" Someone shouted excitedly.

Felicity craned her neck in her seat, trying her best to spot Flavia.

At that moment, Nathan stood up, he gently buttoned up his suit, and walked over, behaving like a high-ranked elite.

He had planned this alumni meeting and was also an investor. He naturally should have the front seat at welcoming Flavia.

When he passed by Felicity, he smiled disdainfully and teased, "No matter how hard you crane your neck, Flavia still won't see you. Do you think you're so special because you both sang a song together once? There are numerous people who sang with her, do you really think she would care for someone like you? Don't make a fool of yourself here."

Nathan and Felicity were officially enemies. Their conversation was ice-cold.

Felicity's face froze. She sighed and sat quietly in her seat.

Her aggrieved expression made William feel disgusted.

William rubbed her head and whispered, "Ignore it. You will be very happy later."

Felicity nodded with a wry smile, "Well, I'm satisfied just by seeing her from a distance."

She sounded like a humble little fan.

"Quiet down, all of you! Why are you so excited? Do you want to make a fool of yourself in front of Flavia?" Nathan shouted loudly. The crowd gradually became silent.

Nathan paid for the event. Of course, he had full control.

Flavia slowly appeared.

Everyone felt a sense of surprise and joy.

She was wearing a plain white shirt and a pair of navy blue tight jeans.

Her hair was loose, fluttering against her shoulders, making her look charmingly youthful and amorous.

When Flavia saw everyone, she smiled and greeted lovingly, "Hello, everyone."

Her smile was so beautiful, like a blooming flower.

Everyone was delighted, seeing how Flavia greeted them so warmly.

"Flavia! I like you so much! May I have your autograph?"

"Oh my! I'm so excited to see her so close. She's so friendly!"

Almost everyone picked up their phones and started taking pictures.

Nathan walked over gracefully and said, "Flavia, your presence here is really the highlight of our night! Everyone has been waiting for you."

Flavia smiled and answered politely, "Sorry, I'm late. My schedule was very packed."

Nathan felt more proud when Flavia started speaking to him.

He was the only one who managed to speak to Flavia.

Everyone looked at Nathan enviously. Flavia only smiled at them when they shouted for her attention.

The fact that Nathan was able to talk to Flavia transcended him to a higher status.

Nathan proudly accepted the admiration and felt extremely vain. He reached out his hand gracefully and guided her way, "Flavia, I'll take you to your seat. I've reserved the most distinguished seat for you. Today, you must enjoy a few drinks before you go!"

Just as Flavia was about to say yes, she suddenly saw the two people sitting at a corner. Her eyes popped, and walked through the crowd towards them.

"William, Felicity! You are here too!"
